

Staffing Firms

Staffing firms are contracted by companies to find qualified candidates for open positions. Using a staffing firm is a good way to find work. There are many firms that specialize in different industries. Using a staffing firm is a great way to generate many opportunities because many recruiters already have connections and working relationships with hiring managers.

10 REASONS

Why Personnel Staffing, Inc. may be right for you

1. Learn new skills

When you work different assignments, you may learn software, techniques, computer systems, new technology, industry, and interpersonal skills you may not have the opportunity to develop if you stay in one place.

2. Cultivate more references

If you do a good job, not only will your recruiter sing you praises, but so will your on-site managers. These are people you can use to build your references since they have recent experience working with you.

3. Build your resume

In addition to listing new skills, you will also build a history of companies you have worked for and more experience to document.

4. Flexibility

Because you don't have a permanent work schedule set, you can work for short-term contracts that could free your summers to be with your kids or enable you to travel. Short-term contracts allow you to set when you can or cannot work.

5. Ability to develop networks

The more places you work, the more people you meet that can help you in the future. You never know when a contact will come in handy.

6. Get your foot in the door

If you have little or no experience, it's a little daunting to get a big company to take your resume seriously. Many companies use Personnel Staffing, Inc. to fill support staff roles. If a company likes to promote from within, then you have a chance at other positions.

7. Make your job hunt easier

Using a Personnel Staffing, Inc. can supplement your efforts and make your job search a little less stressful because you have additional people helping you find a job.

8. Practice your interview skills

The more interviews you have, the more practice you have honing your interviewing skills, which will increase your comfort and confidence. This will help you when you are ready for a big and important interview

9. Better understanding of what you want.

You may think that you want to be an accountant, get placed at an accounting firm and realize you hate it. If you're not sure of what you want to do, it's better to figure it out in a contract setting as opposed to a permanent job you obtain yourself.

10. Extra income between jobs

It may seem like a good idea to hold out for a "full time position with steady money," but doesn't it make more sense to work until you get a full time position? Many people turn down contract jobs in favor of waiting for a direct placement, but what are they doing for money in the meantime. You may be voluntarily declining job offers, but what happens when the grocery store or mortgage lender start declining your credit cards and checks?